

Agel Announced as a Winner at the “Top 25 Under 5” Awards

July 16, 2007

Agel was recently announced as the first runner up at the 2007 “Top 25 Under Five” Awards, which spotlight outstanding Utah entrepreneurs from across the state. Agel Founder and CEO Glen Jensen accepted the award.

“I am pleased that Agel is being recognized for its innovation and commitment to quality,” said Glen Jensen. “Agel is only as good as its employees, team members, products and ability to effect lives, and we are proud to be counted among the best in our industry. This award is not just an achievement but also a launch pad for our continued innovation and success.”

The Utah Valley Entrepreneurial Forum (UVEF), a non-profit organization that promotes the development and growth of entrepreneurial ventures, hosted the awards ceremony.

“Utah provides a fertile business climate for the growth of entrepreneurial ventures,” said Mark Lund, chairman of the UVEF board. “The Top 25 Under Five Award winners are among the Utah’s best ambassadors for its vibrant business community.”

The UVEF has recognized the development of more than 150 entrepreneurs and their companies in the past six years. Competing companies are judged based on profit, growth, equity funding, job creation and job quality.

President Craig Bradley, Vice President of Global Sales Jeff Higginson and Chief Financial Officer Kyle Copeland were all in attendance from Agel corporate.
